Ready to take your audio production career to the next level? Our audio production modules offer you all the tools you'll need to succeed behind the mixing board and more.

Making yourself stand out, furthering your education and getting your voice heard is the way to succeed in today's fast paced job market. We'll give you the tools you need, without all the fluff you don't.

Our courses are taught by veteran professionals within the Audio Production field at our campus cities—Chicago, Miami, Denver, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Columbus.

OVERVIEW

The Audio Production program provides an entry into the field of studio-based audio recording and production. The course hones the student's skills in audio editing and engineering, and applies that skill to the in-studio recording environment. Students learn theory of acoustics, electronics, and audio components, and they learn to record, track, mix, and master music within an audio facility. Importantly, students learn the industry standard audio engineering software and practice that software through the courses in the program. The course also provides instruction on the music and broadcasting industries, and the range of professional opportunity as an audio engineer and music business professional.
